Catch-up: last edition covered the Oct 10–15 trade frenzy and the Brett/Andrew veto, which stood after Brett turned down the appeal panel's counter. This week: a brick-laying Week 6, a new #1, Lij's lineup problem, and a live look at Week 7.

WEEK 6 IN REVIEW: WEEK OF THE BRICKS

The median was 98.37, the average of Vlad's 97.34 and Paul's 99.40. That's the 2nd-lowest median in league history, behind only 97.45 in 2025 Week 10.

Doug 104.30, Vlad 97.34 was the closest game, Doug's 5th straight win, and it moved him to 10-2. Vlad lost both results, missing the median by just 1.03. Paul cleared it by the same 1.03 but lost to Derek, so he went 1-1.

Derek posted the week high, 126.86, with Matt A (125.94) and Lij (125.50) right behind. Lij beat Andrew by 44.78, the biggest margin, and Andrew has now lost 8 straight. Brett scored just 69.86 and dropped a second straight, but still leads the league in points (734.90). Matt Z won with 78.08. And the commissioner lost to Juan, 80.80 to 68.18, to fall to 0-12.

Doug jumps five spots to #1 and finished top four in all seven categories. Brett slides to #2 but still leads the league in points; Marc has the best point differential (+138.50). Paul, Matt A and Lij are separated by 0.22 for spots 4 through 6.

results it actually cost him

Lij's roster is loaded and his lineup calls are the worst in the league. Week 2: Rashod Bateman scored 19.30 on his bench while Colston Loveland put up 0.80 at FLEX. Week 6: Travis Hunter scored 21.90 on the bench while Bucky Irving had 5.90. And Jared Goff outscored the starting Jalen Hurts three weeks straight (Weeks 2–4) by 24.32. Loveland was a bad start in three different weeks.

The twist: none of it cost him a result. His two losses were too big for a perfect lineup to fix, and his best possible Week 5 lineup still misses the median by 1.61. He's 8-4 either way. This week he traded Bateman away and Loveland scored 16.4 on Thursday, so maybe he's figured it out.

MOVES SINCE OCT 16

COMMISSIONER'S CORNER: 0-12

Six head-to-head losses, six median losses. Last in points (506.30), last in point differential (−174.30), and I scored 68.18 in a week when the median was 98.37. I traded for Doug's 1st, and Doug has won five straight since. But for one Friday, the scoreboard says Jake 23.00, Matt A 0.00. Screenshot it. It may not last.
